

GROOM

Joe McMenamin knows haircuts like Andy Reid knows plays. McMenamin's sleek but old-school, one-chair barbershop is tucked

SHOP

SO, GUYS, YOU'VE HAD IT UP TO HERE WITH IMITATIONS THAT YOU WOULD QUALIFY IN A SNAP FOR "QUEER EYE" PROVE DOUBTERS WRONG BY GETTING YOUR OWN ACT TOGETHER (AT LEAST, THE STYLE AND GROOMING PORTIONS OF YOUR ACT) AT THESE THREE CHIC — BUT STUDLY — CENTER CITY SHOPS.

into a historic building that parallels Juniper Street. Make an appointment for the city's best shave and a haircut — oh, OK, and a shampoo. 1315 Walnut St., Suite 119, 215-545-5070.

THE NET

This former Rittenhouse Square MECCA of fine hip-hop styles has relocated to a spacious red and white complex on South Street, complete with an art gallery-like display of Timberlands and Adidas. Look for triple-XL pink Lacoste shirts, Rocwear jackets, street-preppy Polo gear, and oversized jeans. 501 South St., 215-592-4446.

WAYNE EDWARDS

Dapper Dans look out: Philadelphia's finest men's frippery is now channeling a Madison Avenue boutique. Interior designer Eric Dyer created an all-white space that practically gleams, the perfect setting for showing off some of the best duds money can buy. Look for Italian merino suits by Kiton, pinstriped suits by Oxford Clothes, the crispest dress shirts by Borrelli, and excellent kicks by Gravati. Not to leave out the ladies, Wayne Edwards has recently introduced a new section of equally fine feminine fashions. 1525 Locust St., 215-731-0120. —LM.